The actual competition

The competition for admission to PhD takes the form of a specialized exam (one or more tests specific to the doctoral field). The specialized exam is organized for each doctoral theme (indicated by the candidate in the application form and sheet) and is taken in front of an admission committee. The admission committee consists of the PhD supervisor, in his/her capacity as a President, and other 3 members, PhD supervisors or specialists in the field with the scientific title of PhD. The committees are made up for each doctoral field in part, by the PhD supervisors' filling a sheet. The sheets with the proposals for commissions are centralized at the teaching departments in which the PhD supervisors act, are endorsed by the Director of department are submitted to SDI for endorsement, in accordance with the admission calendar.

At the specialized exam, each member of the Committee assesses with grades from 1 to 10 the candidate's level of knowledge (based on the literature) of the issues of the respective specialization, the candidate's level of knowledge about the theme of the doctoral thesis and respectively the candidate's capacity to assume theoretical, experimental and methodological initiatives on the proposed theme. The method of evaluation, by one or several tests of the specialized knowledge, as well as their specificity depending on the doctoral field, will be published on the website of SDI and of the faculties.

In the case of candidates who have a Bachelor's Degree diploma obtained in a branch of science different from the one in which the PhD studies are to be conducted, the admission committee verifies the extent to which the specialized knowledge allows the doctoral training activity, as well as whether the candidate's preoccupations justify the orientation towards the new branch of science chosen.

The candidates who come from other countries may take the specialized exam in video-conference system, with the approval of the admission committee.

With a view to carrying out the specialized exam, the applying candidates' files are taken, under signature, by the PhD supervisors / an empowered delegate from the department where the exam takes place. The result of the specialized exam is recorded in some minutes (according to the template provided by SDI), which, together with each candidate's application file, is submitted to SDI on the day of the competition or on the next day.

ADMISSION CRITERIA

The average of admission to PhD is obtained as an arithmetic mean between:

a) the average obtained at the specialized exam (the arithmetic mean of the grades given by admission committee members);

b) the average obtained at the dissertation examination (where applicable);

c) the average obtained at the Bachelor's Degree examination.

The admission average is the criterion for the candidates' admission and ranking, in view of the allocation of the places open for competition (both financed from the budget and for a fee) and of the scholarships for doctoral studies, according to the specific criteria. The candidates who obtain an average lower than 8 (eight) at the specialized exam, are declared failed.

At Transilvania University of Brasov, a doctoral supervisor can simultaneously coordinate maximum 8 doctoral students, who are in different stages of the doctoral studies. The motivated exceptions to this rule are approved by the University Senate. In order to obtain this derogation, the PhD supervisors in question will submit in due time to SDI a written, motivated request, which will be analyzed - endorsed by CSUD-UTBv before being sent to the Senate. The procedure must be completed with the decision of the Senate until the beginning of the admission session (deadline 31.08.2019). Applications that do not meet the deadline will be rejected by law. The situation of the number of doctoral students per doctoral supervisor will be taken into consideration from the moment of the admission session. This includes the doctoral students who have started the procedures of the public defence of their doctoral theses, until the public defence has taken place (based on the Government Decision no. 681 / 2011, with its subsequent amendments and additions).

I. Allocation of places financed from the State budget

The candidates eligible for places financed from the State budget (budgeted), who obtained at least the average 8 (eight) at the specialized exam, are ranked according to the doctoral supervisors, in descending order of the admission average. The candidates with an equal average are ranked in descending order of the average of the undergraduate study years.

Criteria for allocating the budgeted places

Criterion I.1. The PhD supervisors who have eligible candidates, are eligible for one (1) budgeted place, provided they fulfil the minimal habilitation standards specific to the field in which they have the right to supervise PhD, applicable at the beginning of the PhD admission session 2019. The budgeted place will be allocated to the candidate ranked first for each eligible PhD supervisor.

Criterion I.2. In case the number of budgeted places is lower than the number of eligible PhD supervisors, with eligible candidates, according to the criterion I.1, the budgeted places are allocated based on a ranking according to the doctoral fields in IOSUD-UTBv (for the fields in which there are eligible PhD supervisors and eligible candidates), allocating one (1) budgeted place per doctoral field to the candidates ranked first in each field.

The budgeted places remained available after this first allocation will be distributed based on the eligible candidates' ranking (from eligible PhD supervisors), depending on the PhD admission average (regardless of the doctoral field). In case of equal admission average, the budgeted place is allocated to the candidate with the highest average of the undergraduate years.

Criterion I.3. In case the number of budgeted places is higher than the number of those assigned by criterion I.1, the budgeted places remained unoccupied are distributed according to the following criteria, progressively applied, up to the budgeted places running out:

(i) one place for the eligible candidates ranking first at the PhD supervisors who do not fulfil the minimal habilitation standards;

(ii) one place for the eligible candidates ranking second at the full eligible PhD supervisors according to criterion I.1;

(iii) one place for the eligible candidates ranking second at the PhD supervisors who do not fulfil the minimal habilitation standards;

a.s.o. (if relevant).

When attributing the places based on these criteria (i-iii successively applied) the candidates' ranking based on the admission average is taken into account, and the budgeted places are attributed to the candidates in descending order of the admission averages. In case of equal admission average, the budgeted place is allocated to the candidate with the highest average of the undergraduate years.

In case the number of budgeted places is increased:

- the additional budgeted places are distributed according to the criteria I.1 - I.3;

- if there are no more candidates for the budgeted places, the places remained unoccupied are offered to the candidates who opted for places for a fee, descending order of the admission average.

II. Allocation of doctoral scholarships

The rankings of the candidates admitted on budgeted places are made according to the doctoral field in descending order of the admission average (for the fields to which budgeted places were allocated according to the criteria I). The candidates with equal admission average are ranked in descending order of the average of the undergraduate study years, and in case this average is also equal, the average of the specialized exam will be taken into account.

Criteria for allocating the scholarships:

Criterion II.1. The first ranked in every PhD field receives a scholarship from the State budget. In case of equal admission average, the budgeted place will be allocated to the candidate with the highest average of the undergraduate years, and in case this average is also equal, the candidates' delineation is made according to the average of the specialized exam.

Criterion II.2. The unallocated scholarships are distributed to the candidates declared admitted on budgeted places, yet who have not received a scholarship after the application of criterion II.1, according to the ranking of the candidates ranked second for each PhD field where there are eligible candidates. If the number of scholarships to be allocated is lower than the number of doctoral fields, the allocation will be based on the candidates' admission average. If scholarships remain unallocated after the second distribution, the ranking for the candidates ranked third for each doctoral field in which there are eligible candidates will be made, and so forth.

In case of equal average, the scholarship is attributed to the candidate with the highest average during the undergraduate years, and in case this average is equal, the candidates' delineation is made according to the average of the specialized exam.

The budgeted places without scholarship will be allocated to the candidates admitted on budgeted places, after the allocation of the scholarships.

In case the number of scholarships is increased, the Criterion II.2 applies.

III. Allocation of the places with tuition fee

In order to distribute the places for a tuition fee, where the candidates' number is higher than the number of available places established by the University Senate, the rankings of the candidates who opted (also) for places for a fee, are made according to the doctoral fields, in descending order of the admission average. The candidates with an equal average are ranked in descending order of the average of the undergraduate years.

Criterion III.1. The first ranked for each PhD field receives the place for a fee. In case of equal average, the place is attributed to the candidate with the highest average of the undergraduate years.

Criterion III.2. The places remained unallocated are distributed to the candidates remained in the competition after the application of criterion III.1. The distribution of the available places for a fee is made in descending order of the admission average (regardless of the PhD field). In case of equal average, the place is allocated to the candidate with the highest average during the undergraduate years.
